FORMAL DEMAND SENT TO GERMAN CHANCELLOR FOR KAISER'S ABDICATION

TWO HARD BLOWS REOPEN FIGHTING ON WEST FRONT

Offensives Begun In Flanders And From Meuse To Argonne

BOTH SUCCESSFUL

Allies Average Ten-Mile Advance To Scheldt South Of Ghent

GHENT NEAR FALL

French And Americans Make Big Gain At Other End Of Line

THE BATTLE IN BRIEF

Two great blows at the ends of the line on the Western front—apparently designed to pinch in the whole German front—have been struck by Foch. Both are achieving success.

In Flanders the Allied armies have advanced at a tremendous stride, making from five to fifteen miles on a front of fifteen. They hold the Scheldt from Mechelen to Gavere and the French cavalry is only two miles from Ghent. Around Valenciennes there is another advance and the British have taken Valenciennes itself. Thousands of prisoners have been taken on this part of the front.

On the other end of the line, on both sides of the Argonne, the French and Americans have attacked. On a twenty-mile front they have advanced from five to ten miles. A further German retreat here is believed inevitable, as the Americans command the Germans' principal railway line of communication. Eight thousand prisoners have been taken here.

(French Wireless)

Lyons, November 3.—The 1st American Army and the 4th French Army continued to progress on Saturday in the region between the Aisne and the Meuse. The French troops conquered, on their left, Semuy and advanced their lines to the southern bank of the Ardennes Canal. On their right Longwy and Prunay have fallen into our hands. On its front the American Army advanced towards Stenay, occupied a number of villages and, at Bazancourt, reached the Vouziers-Stenay road.

In Belgium the progress of the Belgian, British and French forces continued. The enemy is retreating on Ghent and the Termeuzen Canal. The Allied troops have reached the course of the Scheldt for a large distance south of Ghent. The French cavalry is within three or four kilometers of Ghent.

Argonne Offensive Begun

Lyons, November 3.—On Friday General Gouraud's army took the offensive on either side of Vouziers along the Forest of Argonne, in co-operation with the American Army operating on our right up to the Meuse. Despite a very lively resistance the French troops progressed on a front of twenty kilometers and attained their objectives. They passed the Aisne and occupied the villages of Semuy and Voucy, on the right bank. Further south they pushed up to the plateau of Alleux and, on their right, they have reached a point southwest of Prunay.

The American Army advanced west of Grandpre and conquered

Formal Memorandum Made In His Capacity As Secretary Of State; London Is Skeptical Of Abdication Rumors

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Copenhagen, November 2.—It is officially announced in Berlin that Herr Scheidemann, in his capacity as Secretary of State, has sent the Imperial Chancellor a memorandum emphasizing the necessity of the abdication of the Emperor.

London, November 3.—Reuter's agency is informed by the Foreign Office that the rumors of the abdication of the Kaiser should be received with the greatest suspicion. London, November 3.—Swiss reports depict the Kaiser's departure for headquarters as flight. It is stated that the German Government is urging the Kaiser's abdication. General Ludendorff who is apparently still at the German headquarters is said to be chief of a military cabal against the Government but it is believed that the latter could thwart any such plot.

Kaiser Issues Decree

Amsterdam, November 2.—On the occasion of the Constitutional developments coming into force, the Kaiser issued a decree endorsing the decisions of the Reichstag and avowing his determination to co-operate in their full development.

The following is the text of the Kaiser's decree, which is addressed to the Imperial Chancellor:

"Your Grand Ducal Highness, I return herewith for immediate publication the Bill to amend the Imperial Constitution and the Law of March 17, 1879, relating to the representation of the Imperial Chancellor, which was submitted to me for signature.

"On the occasion of a step so momentous for the future history of the German people, I desire to express my feelings. Prepared by a series of Government Acts, the new order comes into force, transferring fundamental rights of the Kaiser's person to the people. Thus ends a period which will stand in honor before the eyes of future generations.

"Notwithstanding all the struggles between inherited authority and aspiring forces, it has been rendered possible to our people that tremendous development, which has imperceptibly revealed itself in our wonderful achievements in this war. In the terrible storms of four years of war, however, old forms have been broken up, not to leave ruins behind, but to make room for new, vital forms. After the achievements

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, November 3.—The Press bureau announces that Mr. Lloyd George has telephoned to Downing Street from Paris that news has arrived that Austria-Hungary, the last of Germany's props, has gone out of the war. General Diaz signed an armistice on Sunday afternoon which comes into operation at three o'clock on Monday.

Rome, November 3.—The Inter-Allied Conference at Versailles drew up the conditions of the Austrian armistice which General Diaz communicated to the Austrian Emperor. The conditions would render the enemy's resumption of the war impossible and would prevent him from profiting by the armistice by extracting himself from his present bad military position.

London, November 1, 7:35 p.m.—Reuter's agency learns that it is practically certain hostilities between Austria and Italy will cease almost immediately, if they have not already ceased.

Soviet For Vienna. Amsterdam, November 2.—A telegram from Vienna states that plans had been drawn up for the formation of a Central Committee of soldiers' representatives to replace the present provisional one.

London, November 3.—News from Vienna and Budapest continues to be vague and contradictory.

Despatches from Budapest via Amsterdam describe the soldiers as acclaiming the new National Government whereas messages received in Copenhagen state that communication between Berlin and Budapest has been cut and the last advice reported bloody fighting in the streets between Hungarian and Russian troops.

Apparently the troops in both Vienna and Budapest are clamoring for peace and now the governments are trying to smooth them.

Thus the Germano-Austrian Council in Vienna has issued a proclamation to the garrison and also to the soldiers at the front promising the immediate conclusion of peace and speedy demobilization and urging them to refrain from excesses. Representatives of the Council have visited the barracks to negotiate with the soldiers regarding the formation of a Germano-Austrian army.

Amsterdam, November 2.—A telegram from Budapest states that the Military and Naval Commands and members of the Civil Service are taking oaths of allegiance to the National Council. The Council urges the people to resume work and the soldiers to return to their barracks. Popular rejoicings continue.

All Magyars In Cabinet
Karolyi has issued a list of Ministers which is chiefly notable for the fact that they are all Magyars. Another new Cabinet is a Germano-Austrian one which has been formed in Vienna, the most notable names in which are those of Herz...

Herz who is Minister of Foreign Affairs and the socialist Victor Adler, father of the assassin of the Austrian Premier Stuerger in 1916. Meanwhile the whereabouts of Emperor Karl is uncertain. The latest report is that he is still in Vienna.

All these developments impose new responsibilities upon the Entente Powers, involving the safeguarding of their nationals, the limitation of civil war and the preservation of governments capable of discharging the obligations incurred by the monarchy. It is impossible to predict how the swift march of events will affect Germany.

The hurried departure of the Kaiser, the Imperial Chancellor and the Kaiser's Secretary, Delbrueck, for headquarters has revived rumors in Berlin of the impending abdication of the Kaiser. Though it is pointed out in London that the stiffened German resistance against the British coincides with the Kaiser's arrival on the front, and it is stated that the first task of General Ludendorff's successor, General Groener, is to collect reinforcements from the front for the west.

Japanese House Law Changed By Princes
Provision Made For Marriage Of Princess To Korean Prince

Reuter's Pacific Service
Tokyo, November 2.—A conference of Princes of the Blood, which is rarely held, sat today and passed an additional provision of the "House Law" for making possible the marriage of Princess Masako Mashimoto and Prince Yi-kon of Chosen. The Emperor was present. Nearly half the privy councillors opposed the amendment to the House Law. They contend that the marriage can be perfectly legal without touching the House Law, which is only permissible in very serious circumstances. They were absent from the session of the Privy Council held yesterday (or passing the amendment to the House Law. The attitude of the Privy Council in the present instance is without precedence.

ONLY DECISIVE VICTORY POSSIBLE, SAYS ASQUITH

All Sacrifice In Vain Unless Future Wars Are Made Impossible

(Reuter's Agency War Service) London, November 2.—Mr. Asquith, speaking at Cuxhaven, said that matters have reached a stage at which victory must be decisive if peace is to be secured. All our sacrifices will have been thrown away if we acquiesce in anything less than a peace which, besides permanently crushing our present enemies' aggressive ambition, renders a recurrence of such a war impossible by striking at the very root of the causes of the war.

The League of Nations must be attained but it is to exist in a practical sense then no country could participate in the partnership if its government is based on autocracy.

London, November 1.—Mr. Asquith, speaking in Glasgow, said that the most striking change occurring in Europe was the complete irrevocable collapse of autocracy.

Three Emperors in 1914 ruled the greater part of Europe and a large part of Asia. The Russian Emperor had been deposed and murdered, the Austrian Emperor was a walt and astray while the third Emperor was hovering on the verge of abdication. Whatever would be the terms of peace these thrones would not be rebuilt.

We entered the war as the champions of the smaller nations and notwithstanding tribulations every one of these would ultimately find its trust in the Allies more than justified. History would record how largely this achievement was due to the British navy, merchant marine, armies and airmen and to British finance. Our general aims could still be summed up in the two words "reparation and security."

Germans Must Admit Defeat, Says Tardieu

Unless They Do Allies Will Seek Last Resort To Compel Them

(American Wireless To Reuter) Washington, November 2.—(Received by French Wireless Station).—Mr. Andre Tardieu, the French High Commissioner to the United States, said today that the Germans in answering the Allies' terms for an armistice must "say whether they confess they are beaten. Should they confess it," he said, "the war would end through their accepting the conditions. Should they not, we shall force their accepting peace by means of last resorts the results of which will not be doubtful."

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Harbin, November 2.—Reuter's agency is reliably informed that General Horvath's appointment as High Commissioner for the Far East has also been signed by the All-Russian Government.

Harbin, November 2.—According to the Siberian news agency, the French High Commissioner, M. Regnaud, was motoring through the streets of Irkutsk when, owing to the clumsiness of the chauffeur, the machine was driven into a lamp-post. Happily the French High Commissioner and his companions received only slight injuries.

According to statement made by an officer who recently managed to get through to the Far East from the Ukraine, the peasant movement opposing the Germans is growing rapidly.

Japan To Co-operate With U.S. In Trade, Tokio Mission Says

Delegates At Chamber Of Commerce In San Francisco Predict Close Friendship

(American Wireless To Reuter) San Francisco, November 2.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—The Chamber of Commerce today gave a luncheon to the delegates of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Tamashima, head of the Tokio mission, said that the future relations between America and Japan were sure to bring the closest friendship and co-operation between the two commercial forces. He said that no effort would be spared by Japan to co-operate with American merchants and he gave assurance of Japan's desire for fairness and equitability in the Orient without any discrimination.

The luncheon followed a conference which gave consideration to methods of co-operation between the Tokio and San Francisco chambers and to planning efforts to improve all the conditions of commercial and industrial relations between the two nations.

San Francisco, November 2.—(Received by French Wireless Station).—The members of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce departed today for Portland, Oregon, after spending the last day of their visit here in sight seeing and visiting the University of California, where many Japanese, including some who are high in business life in other parts of the world, received their English education.

The first accomplishment of the mission was the presentation to the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce of the joint resolution of six Chambers of Commerce of Japan favoring the initiation of a movement to change the monetary standard of China from silver to gold. Mr. Yamashima announced that this resolution would be presented to all commercial bodies in the United States which the mission would visit, with the hope that it would enlist the aid of American commercial leaders in the movement to have the monetary standard of the United States, Japan and China the same in order to facilitate the great commercial relations of the future between America and the Orient and permit possible means for developing the great resources of the Far East.

Mr. S. Shiba, Honorary Secretary of the mission, said that another important result achieved in San Francisco was the arrangement with the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce for practical co-operation which will work for the benefit of both institutions by unifying their activities. The details will be worked out while the mission is visiting other cities and upon their return practical methods will be perfected.

of the enemy were killed and many counter-attacks were repulsed. We took 4,000 prisoners.

The 17th Army Corps and the 22nd Army Corps, under the command of Generals Gerguison and Godley respectively, gained high ground south-eastward of Valenciennes and in the morning pressed forward and captured the village of Present.

Further north a Canadian Corps under the command of General Currie, after hard fighting in the outskirts of Valenciennes, passed through the town which is wholly in our possession.

Fighting Is Hard

General Haig's communiqué this evening reports:

There was determined fighting throughout the day south and east of Valenciennes. We made good progress northeast of Maresches and east and north of Preseau, capturing the hamlet of St. Hubert and farms in the vicinity. Eastward of Valenciennes, we captured Marly village and our advanced troops entered St. Saulve. In the course of these operations we captured two tanks, which the enemy used in his unsuccessful counter-attacks on November 1, and took several hundred prisoners. We advanced our line and captured prisoners in successful minor operations westward of Lancreches.

Aviation.—We dropped fifteen and a half tons of bombs, making many direct hits, on enemy railways and shot down thirteen enemy aeroplanes and drove down seven out of control. Ten British machines are missing.

A German official wireless message states:

We withdrew southward of Deynze behind the Scheldt. We evacuated Valenciennes. The enemy near Vaucy advanced to the heights on the eastern bank of the Aisne and gained a footing in Falaise. American troops gained territory on both sides of Bayonville.

The German evening communiqué reports:

English troops southward of Valenciennes and the Americans westward of the Meuse gained local territory.

Americans On Flanders Front

A British Belgian official communiqué reports:

The operations of the Allied armies in Flanders continued on November 1 very successfully. The British on the south bank threw the enemy on the Scheldt to Melden, capturing the strongly fortified villages of Ansegem, Tieghem, Caster and Elsegem.

On October 31 we captured 900 prisoners. The French and Americans in the center carried the fiercely defended heights between the Lys and Scheldt and advanced to the Scheldt between Melden and Eecke on a front of sixteen kilometers to a depth of from eight to sixteen kilometers, capturing in two days fighting nineteen villages, notably Deynze, Nazareth and Audenarde, and taking on October 31, 2,000 prisoners and two batteries.

The Belgians in the north carried out minor operations on the Derive Canal assisted by French tanks.

London, November 3.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this morning:

Yesterday we captured the steel works south-east of Valenciennes which the enemy had defended with determination all day long. We advanced our line a mile and a half eastward of the town and completed the capture of St. Saulve.

In two days we have taken 5,000 prisoners and also four tanks and a few guns.

British Captures In Month 50,000 Men, 925 Guns

The British during October captured in France 49,000 prisoners, including 1,200 officers. They also captured 925 guns, 7,000 machine-guns and 670 trench mortars.

In the area of the enemy's retreat, numerous stocks of ammunition, material and stores have fallen into our hands, including several locomotives, quantities of rolling stock, many weapons, a few tanks, hundreds of tons of wire, several thousand tons of road metal, some hundreds of miles of telephone cable, and a great number of engineers and other troops. The enemy abandoned on the front of one army alone, some two million feet of timber.

The British, in the series of successful battles during the last three months, took 172,653 prisoners and captured 2,878 guns, 17,000 machine-guns and 2,750 trench mortars.

This evening's German communiqué reports:

South of Deynze we have withdrawn from further attacks by holding ground towards the Scheldt.

Paris, October 31.—The official communiqué issued this evening reports:

Heavy fighting on the western slopes of St. Ferguex Plateau resulted to our advantage. We took 120 prisoners.

London, October 31.—The American official communiqué this evening reports:

North of Verdun we ejected the enemy from the village of Brielleux, west of the Meuse.

The artillery has been very heavy along our whole front. Seven enemy aeroplanes have been shot down.

Paris, November 1.—The official communiqué issued this evening reports:

The enemy has penetrated our line southward of Deynze. Our troops northward of the Courtrai-Adenarde railway have been withdrawn to keep touch with their neighbors on the heights on both sides of Noker.

Our troops on both sides of Belgium and Semendria have been withdrawn to the north bank of the Aisne.

Haig's correspondent at French headquarters in France reports:

The attack of the 1st and 2nd British Armies south of Valenciennes threatens the enemy communications by the capture of the high ground southeast of the town. The enemy is resisting strongly, but is intending to cling to this strategic pivot as long as possible. Our batteries could easily render Valenciennes untenable but only by hitting it. Our desire to avoid amazing the town is largely responsible for the prolongation of the fighting.

British Capture 4,000

London, November 2.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's communiqué this morning reports:

The fighting yesterday southward of Valenciennes was very severe and continued until morning. On a front of six miles large numbers communiqué issued this afternoon reports:

There has been violent artillery fighting during the night time in the region of Gasse, west of St. Ferguex.

The French communiqué this evening reports:

Fighting occurred through the day between St. Quentin-le-Petit and Herpy. The enemy was compelled to yield ground in the region of Bangone and Recouvance, also westward of Herpy.

Aisne Offensive Opened

The 4th French Army, with American troops co-operating, attacked this morning on the Aisne front north and south of Vouziers. On a front of 20 kilometers, from westward of Attigny to northward of Ollay, we penetrated the enemy positions, which were stubbornly defended, and carried Rilly-aux-Oris to the east of Attigny.

Further south our troops, crossing the Aisne, carried Semuy and Vaucy and vigorously drove back the enemy eastward over three kilometers, penetrating deeply into Vaucy Wood.

Equally violent fighting occurred eastward of Vouziers. We gained a footing on the Alleux Plateau to the northeast of Therron, and reached the western outskirts of Vandy Wood and a brook eastward of Chis-tres. On the right we advanced beyond Falaise and carried the crest southwest of Primat.

Several hundred prisoners and a number of guns, including four batteries, were captured.

Reuter's correspondent at French headquarters reports this evening:

German Communications In Peril

Future operations towards Mezières and the German main line of communications with Germany largely depends on the success of the battle launched today on both sides of the Argonne.

General Gouraud's army, striking northeastward of the Aisne across the Argonne, is in touch at Grandpre with the large American attack directed towards the east of the Argonne.

Both these attacks are engaged in turning the labyrinth of wooded hills and ravines styled Bas Wood and Boult Forest. When they join hands north of this great forest the enemy will have lost the last of the natural fortress remaining to him before the Ardennes.

The success of both these armies today is signified by the remarkably rapid progress of the joint turning movement.

Retreat Through Forest

Paris, November 2.—The French communiqué this morning reports:

Vigorous attacks by the 4th Army on the Aisne front combined with the victorious American effort between the Argonne and the Meuse, compelled the enemy to retreat through the Argonne Forest. His rearwards resisted desperately, but they were unable to arrest our advance.

Our left occupied the southern bank of the Argonne Canal for two kilometers between Semuy and Neuville-en-Day. Further south we captured Verduy Woods and Talay village and reached the outskirts of Alleux, notwithstanding the enemy's very fierce resistance. Our right captured Longue and Primat and passed Chénérat and is vigorously pursuing the enemy in spite of the serious obstacle presented by the Argonne Forest. The enemy is abandoning huge quantities of material and we have taken hundreds of prisoners.

Notwithstanding dense fog on the whole front, our aviators were very active. Two of their reconnaissances pushed a distance of seventy-five miles in the enemy's rear, exploring the Province of Namur. As great activity on the part of troops and convoys was reported in the enemy's

Haig's correspondent at French headquarters in France reports:

The attack of the 1st and 2nd British Armies south of Valenciennes threatens the enemy communications by the capture of the high ground southeast of the town. The enemy is resisting strongly, but is intending to cling to this strategic pivot as long as possible. Our batteries could easily render Valenciennes untenable but only by hitting it. Our desire to avoid amazing the town is largely responsible for the prolongation of the fighting.

British Capture 4,000

London, November 2.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's communiqué this morning reports:

The fighting yesterday southward of Valenciennes was very severe and continued until morning. On a front of six miles large numbers of the enemy were killed and many counter-attacks were repulsed. We took 4,000 prisoners.

The 17th Army Corps and the 22nd Army Corps, under the command of Generals Gerguison and Godley respectively, gained high ground south-eastward of Valenciennes and in the morning pressed forward and captured the village of Present.

Further north a Canadian Corps under the command of General Currie, after hard fighting in the outskirts of Valenciennes, passed through the town which is wholly in our possession.

Fighting Is Hard

General Haig's communiqué this evening reports:

There was determined fighting throughout the day south and east of Valenciennes. We made good progress northeast of Maresches and east and north of Preseau, capturing the hamlet of St. Hubert and farms in the vicinity. Eastward of Valenciennes, we captured Marly village and our advanced troops entered St. Saulve. In the course of these operations we captured two tanks, which the enemy used in his unsuccessful counter-attacks on November 1, and took several hundred prisoners. We advanced our line and captured prisoners in successful minor operations westward of Lancreches.

Aviation.—We dropped fifteen and a half tons of bombs, making many direct hits, on enemy railways and shot down thirteen enemy aeroplanes and drove down seven out of control. Ten British machines are missing.

A German official wireless message states:

The French and Americans in the center carried the fiercely defended heights between the Lys and Scheldt and advanced to the Scheldt between Melden and Eecke on a front of sixteen kilometers to a depth of from eight to sixteen kilometers, capturing in two days fighting nineteen villages, notably Deynze, Nazareth and Audenarde, and taking on October 31, 2,000 prisoners and two batteries.

The Belgians in the north carried out minor operations on the Derive Canal assisted by French tanks.

Germans Demand Kaiser Abdicate

Of these times, the German people can claim that no right which may guarantee a free, happy future shall be withheld from them.

The proposals of the Allied Governments which are now adopted and extended over their origin to this conviction, I, however, with my exalted allies, endorse these decisions of Parliament in the firm determination, so far as I am concerned, to co-operate in their full development. I am convinced that I am thereby promoting the well of the German people. The Kaiser's office is one of service to the people. May, therefore, the new order release all good powers which the people need in order to support the trials overhanging the Empire and with a firm step win a bright future from the gloom of the present.

Kaiser's Position Discussed
Amsterdam, November 2.—The whole German press is discussing the Kaiser's position and publish inspired statements that he intends to issue a decree assenting to the internal political changes.

A meeting of the Progressive Party in Munich passed a resolution demanding the abdication of the Kaiser while the Weser Zeitung reports that a crowd numbering thousands demonstrated before the palace in Stuttgart demanding the abdication of the Kaiser and the formation of a German socialist republic and says that the police dispersed them with difficulty.

A meeting of Berlin banking, commercial and industrial representatives passed a resolution to urge the Government to accept the terms for an armistice laid down by the Entente as it is impossible to expect the war situation to improve.

Germany To Insist On Colonies
Amsterdam, November 1.—The German Foreign Office states that the peace negotiations must be concluded in the closest contact with economic circles. The Foreign Office regards the regaining of the German colonies as one of the main tasks and will do everything to create a free market as soon as possible for mercantile activities abroad.

War To End In Week?
London, November 1.—The surrender of Turkey and the imminent disappearance of Austria-Hungary has completed the isolation of Germany and release formidable Allied forces for new fields of action on the frontiers of Saxony, Bavaria and elsewhere. Facilitating the Allied efforts for the reconstruction of Russia and the restoration of Poland and incidentally giving access to the granaries of Southern Russia. These developments will take time but their menace may persuade Germany to forestall by capitulation the inevitable end. The accounts which have reached London concerning Germany's internal difficulties suggest that the terms of the Allies may speedily be accepted.

The Daily News even predicts the cessation of hostilities by the end of next week, though naturally the settlement of the conditions of peace will take much longer.

The papers generally, however, contemplate the possibility of a considerable naval battle in the Black Sea, where the Germanised Russian Black Sea fleet, which includes two dreadnaughts, may offer to fight or may take shelter behind its mine and submarine defenses.

The papers, commenting on Turkey's surrender, emphasize that it is the single-handed work of Great Britain, whose sea-power has made possible the splendid triumphs of the British and Indian armies in the East.

DISASTERS CAUSE PANIC IN GERMAN FINANCES

Depositors Begin Withdrawing Money From Banks And Hoarding Notes

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
London, November 1.—The President of the Imperial German State Bank, addressing the directors of the bank, indicated that the recent political and military events have resulted in a financial panic. He said that there had been a completely senseless withdrawal of balances from the credit institutions and a hoarding of bank notes by members of every class. The population was not mindful of the fact that they most severely damaged the whole economic existence of Germany in the time of greatest necessity.

Football

Shanghai College Wins

Shanghai College defeated Fuh Tan University 6 to 1 at football Saturday in a game which was animatedly contested throughout, despite the one-sidedness of the score.

As a matter of fact all seven points were scored by Shanghai. One of the college backs, in trying to ward off a corner kick, sent the ball through his own goal. Fuh Tan displayed better individual work than their opponents.

Next Saturday the Union Club plays Shanghai College on the latter's ground.

Secony Beats Jewish Rees

Last Saturday the Secony Football Club met the Jewish Recreation Club at the Hongkew Park, the former winning by 1-0. The solitary goal was scored by Stellingwerf from a penalty. Both sides had weak forward and good defenses; the J. R. C. forward line in particular had many chances which were lost through bad shooting.

Scene: The Hall of a Chateau near the Somme Front.

Charlie, an Orderly, is on guard.

Charlie—Gee, I wish I was in Dixie. (He picks up book and reads.) Avez vous du pain—Have you some bread. Out J'ai du pain—I have some bread. Mercy: Maintenant je desire quelque chose a boire—Now, I wish something to drink—and that's no lie. Donnez moi une demi tasse—I know that one. Maintenant l'addition—Now the check. All those words just to get some bread and coffee. (Marianne enters) Who's that?

Marianne—Past moi, Monsieur.

Charlie—A dame? Here! (To her) Que faites-vous. Ne parlez pas.

Marianne—Oh, you are an American.

Charlie—Funny how everybody knows that soon as I talk French. It's a good thing you speak English, though. About all I could do would be to say, Avez-vous du pain, and that wouldn't get us far. As it is, what are you doing here, lady?

Marianne—Waiting for Lieutenant Sireton. So you are studying our language?

Charlie—Yes, but it don't come easy—and that book don't tell you nothing you want to know.

Marianne (reminiscently)—No, books do not tell us much—it is experience.

Charlie—Say, if it's experience, I've had enough to make me a professor.

Marianne—I was in New York once, when I was a little girl.

Charlie—You don't say! Did you like it?

Marianne—Very much. The buildings—so high.

Charlie—You ought to see 'em now.

Marianne—And the Statue of Liberty—from our own France. And Fifth Avenue and the Zoo and the Museums and Central Park and—

Charlie—Oh, you only saw that regular dollar trip, but sometime I'd like to show you real New York—you know, the little things—funny, queer places and people.

Marianne—The little things—the queer places! I know. So it is with Paris. There is a spot in the Tuilleries Garden; the golden sun, the cries of the vendors; the very smell of the place—a little old man in the tobacco shop across on the Rue de Rivoli; the shine of the rain on the Champs Elysees.

Charlie—I get you—I get you—there are places like that in New York.

Marianne—There are places like that in all cities—it is only that we know and love our own best.

Charlie—There's a guy on Sixth Avenue who makes the best corned beef hash in all this here entire world.

Marianne—Corned beef hash! I had that. I liked it.

Charlie—Good for you. Corned beef hash and some white bread! I'd give eleven dollars a plate for a banquet like that right now.

Marianne—But there was one thing I could not find in your New York—our honey—our wonderful honey from Chamomile—thick and white—from the clover. Oh, M'sieu, how I missed it.

Charlie—Sounds like it might do pretty well with griddle cakes.

Marianne—Much better than your maple syrup.

Charlie—Don't, you'll have me crying in a minute—griddle cakes. I can see those boys in the white caps in Child's flappin' 'em over right now. Say, let's talk about scenery or something. Of course, there ain't much scenery in New York—the Hudson's pretty, though. They say it's as good as the Rhine, but I hope to compare 'em myself before I'm through over here.

Marianne—I hope so, too.

Charlie—But honest, lady, sometime I wish I could write the things I've seen. Funny, ain't it, but mostly the guys who see the things can't write 'em and the guys that write 'em don't see 'em. Why, some of the stuff I've read about this war, it's bull, all bull. (Dog walks in and lies down.)

Marianne—Bull?

Charlie—Yes, you know, bull—bunk. There's one French word I know—camouflage. Bull is the same as camouflage.

Marianne (smiling)—Now I understand.

Charlie—Here, pup, what are you doin' around here—looking for the boss?

Marianne—That is Rene's dog?

Charlie—Yes, lady, one of these here dogs of war. Sergeant he is. Been wounded twice and—come here, pup. See here, on his blanket are two marks—one for each wound—and eleven stars—one for each life he's saved.

Marianne—You brave doggie.

Charlie—Oh, he's brave, all right. And, funny a German'll shoot one of these dogs quick as he would a Frenchman. Queer, ain't it, because all the dogs do is to go out and find a wounded man, and they'll bring back his cap or a piece of his uniform. And that shows, you see, he's found somebody. See the stretcher-bearers, and then he leads 'em to the wounded man and trots home alongside. But they don't bring back anything unless the man's alive. If he's dead, they leave him alone. Wonderful, ain't they, and they never pay no attention to anybody unless he's in a French uniform. Do you, old sport? You wouldn't think the Germans'd bother him, would you lady, but the French are awful nice about dogs. I know one pup. Corporal French they called him. Had his leg broken by a sniper, but we patched him up, and then his master was killed. And these dogs won't work but for one master. If he goes, they're no more use.

Marianne—I didn't know that.

Charlie—No, most people don't. So when Corporal French lost his boss he naturally couldn't serve any longer, so the General gave the dog a paper, all engraved like: "This is to certify that Corporal French has served two years in the French army, and that for gallant conduct in action he is now honorably discharged." And they pinned that on his blanket and sent him back to his master's widow. Kind of pretty, ain't it?

Marianne—It is beautiful.

Charlie—Yes, it hit me. Say, lady, I wonder is there maybe a heaven for pups like that!

Mother Goodse Up To Date

Little Miss Muffet
She sat on a tuffet.
Eating of curds and whey.
Yet she was beguiling,
And constantly smiling.

You see it was meatless day.
If all the world was sirloin steak.
And all the sea was wine,
The Bolshevik would still sit 'round
And kick and growl and whine!

Lady-bug, lady-bug,
Hurry home, please,
There's no coal in your house

And your children will freeze.
There was a hare lived 'neath an oak,
Wickie, waddle, weedle,
And every word he ever spoke
Was "fiddle, fiddle, feedle!"
An eagle grabbed him in his claws,
A trick he never missed,
And ate that hare for lunch, because
He was a pacifist!

Humpty-Kaiser sat on a wall
And saw his German Empire fall.
Nor all of his Prussians, nor all of his men
Can put the Empire back again!

Hush-a-bye baby,
Daddy's not here.
That's why the star's
On the flag, my dear.

Eagles Of Democracy

Chapman gone, and Lufbery flown
His last brave flight to the furthest place!
Bow your head for the dauntless dead!
In grief and glory lift up your face!
Raise a shout to the winds about
To voice the triumph of all the race!
Yes, for still what the human will
May dare to dream of the strange and new;
Still we find the hand and the mind
To dare the devil and see it through—
The hand and the brain to dare the pain,
Till soul is lord, and the dream come true.
Cesar's pride may debar and divide
Men's hearts from men with the spears of war;

The motors hum and the stars cry,
"Come!" Hail! All hail! And the windy vast.

Kate's Cakes

In the great drawing-room, with its rich furniture and rose-shaded lights, the heiress and her husband sat chatting after dinner.

"Percy, dear," she said presently,
a tender light in her eyes, "do you remember what day tomorrow is?
Fancy, we shall have been married nine years, and not once have
I missed baking you a special cake for that day, have I?"

Percy gazed fondly at her.

"No, my darling," he agreed.
"You have never failed me, and I

"Did you mail that letter I gave

"No, my dear. I whistled to

THE BIRDS

Spring.
And the birds.
Some from the South.
Some from the wilds
Of Methuen, N. J.
And some hold-overs,
Like the English sparrows,
And the others
That remained.
The birds sing.
Hark!
The throndy of their song
Is like the squeak
Of a wheelbarrow,
The bold larks
Fly to the
Boudoir windows
And joyously cry
"Peep! Peep!"

SUNLIGHT
Glorious golden sunlight.
We have read about it.
They tell us
Here in Greenwich Village
That it is very beautiful
In the morning.
But most of us
Get to bed
Just before dawn
And so never see it.
Look!
Is that not a splash
Of sunlight?
I am right.
It is not
It is a Titian haired
Girl
Wearing yellow glass

Birds.
Yet they say
That the morning sun
Is really quite
A creditable sight.

THE PARK

The park
Is for all of us.
But it is not Sufficiently Bohemian.
It is too natural.
There is no interpretative thought
The nature
As it appears
Unassisted by artists
And by poets.
Give us blue dandelions
And popple grass
And pink trees
Give us three-cornered
Clouds
Of mottled
Rosy-ash color.
And yellow skies
And dingy clouds
Growing on trees.
Ah—that is Nature.
Why waste space and money
On parks?
We of the true art —
The Real Art
Can write impressionistic verse
And paint
Spasmodic pictures
That are twice as natural
As nature.
Think it over
And buy our wares.

THE RIVAL—A French War Story

Translated By William L. McPherson
(New York Tribune)

Here is a war story in something like the French before-the-war manner. But it has also the war atmosphere. Something of the breath and generosity of spirit which the tragedy of war creates shines in its development.

Pettiness falls away in war and uncharitableness and the narrowness of personal jealousies. Death comes too close. And death and its nearness help to make us forget and pardon.

The exquisite wave of the black hair, the profoundly dreamy expression of the green eyes, the address of the smile poised on the rosy lips—that portrait, that portrait which Mathilde would have liked to seize, to crush to pieces and to annihilate! It was, without doubt, an altogether too exact likeness of that woman in her own heated imagination that became that woman herself, that Genevieve, re-embodied. There alongside the portrait of her husband, recalling by her proximity to him their ideal love of days gone by.

"Her husband! My husband!" Mathilde repeated, with a burning sensation about her heart. Ah! How she suffered now! How she regretted having consented to this marriage! When Lieutenant Richard Malterre, on leaving the hospital, had asked her hand, thanking her for the kindness she had shown him as a nurse, she had wondered, quite carried away, how Heaven, in the midst of this horrible war, could have suddenly sent her so much happiness.

And when he had added: "I must tell you everything. I loved another woman before the war. She is dead. I am a widower," Mathilde, for a moment jealous, had been quickly reassured, believing that she would easily triumph over a rival who had disappeared.

She had evoked, with a feeling of pity, the image of a body in a long box returning slowly to dust and of a soul vanished for ever into the depths of mystery.

But now Richard, wounded again and on a convalescent leave had expressed a desire to pass his month's furlough in the little villa at Juan-les-Pins, where he had formerly spent his winters. And he had asked Mathilde, when she went to open and air the house, not to disturb any object in the little boudoir, for he wished, he said, to respect the scheme of interior decoration which his first wife had worked out with her own hands and to find the atmosphere which she had given the room still intact.

The atmosphere still intact! Yes, the perfume remained, which Genevieve had imparted to all the cushions bunched up on the divan. A book on a round table was marked with a rose-colored ribbon at the page, no doubt, where she had stopped reading. In the silence of the little salon Mathilde believed she heard a beautiful grown of violent satin, like the one which shimmered in the portrait, rustle over the thick, pale carpet.

Was it she or this Genevieve, this dead wife, recalled to life whom Richard wanted to find here? For his memories, precise and vivid, would seal her in every chair, would replace her light fingers on every key of the closed piano, would bring her back as she was, bantering or silent, vivacious or sober. Yes, Richard would see Genevieve, the vanished, more than he would see her; because she was alive and changeable as life, which time transforms from instant to instant, while the other would stand before him in immutable images, in definite postures, which death had made immortal.

A bell rings. Footsteps crunch on the gravel of the path, through the garden. The front door is opened. A servant enters and presents a letter addressed to Mme. Malterre. Mathilde opens it mechanically, absorbed in her thoughts. She reads it without understanding it:

"Genevieve I am here—after so many months. I have come from Salonica. I am at the hotel. I await you."

Genevieve! Then she is alive again! Some one writes to her! Some one still loves her! The eyes of the portrait take on a strange expression of life. It seems as if the dead woman is going to descend from her frame and chase away the intruder in her household!

But no; Mathilde recovers her balance. She comprehends it all suddenly, with a rush of savage joy. She looks at the portrait with a movement of hate and defiance.

"Your friend; you had a friend," she says, with a mocking laugh. "Ah! This time you will be really dead."

When Richard knows all he will banish you."

In her jealous rage she looks about her. She sniffs the perfumed furnishings, the embroidered cushions, the canvas on which the black hair and the rosy lips stand out in all their verisimilitude. All these and all these, he will tear down and cast out! She will tell him everything. At last she will be his only love. She takes a sheet of paper and writes:

"Monsieur, I regret to inform you that M. Malterre has married again."

But instead of inclosing the letter to Genevieve, she keeps it. She will produce it as proof.

"You see, everything is the same—just as you wished it to be," she says softly to her husband, seeing him enter the boudoir, where she has had a fire lighted, so that they may feel more comfortable and so that she may better enjoy the vengeance which is to come presently.

For she is certainly going to tell him everything. So she begins in a hesitating voice:

"The other day the postman brought a letter for Mme. Malterre—that is to say, for Genevieve. A former friend of hers, no doubt."

"Yes? Who was it?" asks Richard abstractedly.

"Pierre Brunet, I believe."

"Then he has come back from Salonica," cries Richard joyfully.

Then in a voice at once deep and sad:

"He didn't know about the death."

A silence intervenes in which one hears the murmurs of the past. The portrait looks, waits, listens, one might say—motionless, without defense.

"Genevieve's death?" says Mathilde, discreetly. (And she dead wife seems to be recalled to life, to love and suffer anew). "No, he couldn't have known. Otherwise, he wouldn't have written."

"And what did he say?"

"Oh!" Mathilde begins. Then she stops, interdicted by the look, so sad and tender, which her husband fixes on all that charming ensemble which recalls his love of earlier days.

Is it she herself who speaks now, or is it another voice which she is compelled to let speak for her from her own lips?

"Oh!" she says, in an indifferent tone, "he asked about you. He was afraid that you had been killed. I don't know any longer what I did with the letter."

And, as Richard, still distrustful, in the midst of his dream and his melancholy, pays no attention to what she is doing, she bends over toward the hearth, and drops a piece of paper, which falls with the dead into that nothingness in which everything is forgotten and pardoned.

TEETHING WITHOUT TEARS A New Light on Baby-Rearing

It is a recognized fact that babies—and in fact all children—need medicines of their own, and that must baby-medicines do more harm in the long run than good. Also great mistakes are often made in measuring doses for tiny patients. Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian medicine for children of all ages, meet every difficulty. They are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless and free from opiates. They are so soft that they fall into powder at very slight pressure, forming an ideal dose for infants.

Baby's Own Tablets are pleasant to the taste; slightly laxative, comforting and digestive—a specific for feverishness, constipation, diarrhoea, and worms. At the time of teething they act like magic, giving painless sleep and easy teething.

Obtainable from chemists, also at 60 cents the retail post free, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 55 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.
